

“Push And Rise” / M. Dukurs, Ē. Ozollapa

the more you push on my knees stronger i get, can't you see i'm chasing dreams no regret in sight i won't stop until they're set alight

i've arrived on my own and i'll leave on my own my game, my rules and that's how it's shown i'll show you more, i vow just give me the time, i'll show you how

the harder you try, the more you gain the more you do, the lesser the pain i'm climbing higher, breaking through the crust for i know my strenght is built to last i've reached the top where dreams pick up a fight in this soaring moment loneliness takes flight when dreams are shrads, and hope feels thin i'll find the fire within in the face of fear i stand tall i won't back down i won't fall

i'm chasing dreams no regrets push and rise

in moments when hands can't hold the weight i know my worth and that's why i didn't stay yeah, i'll stand my ground where truth never lies

* * *

so keep pushing, keep trying to bring me down for with every push, I wear a stronger crown betrayal might sting, but my spirit's free in the face of trials, I'll always be me on top of the world, where dreams intertwine i've set my goals, and the world is mine in the face of fear, i'll stand tall

i won't back down, i won't fall
